

Remuneration Committee Charter

1 Composition

The Remuneration Committee shall be structured so that it has at least two members, at least one of whom is an independent non-executive director and it is chaired by an independent Director.

Where the Remuneration Committee includes an executive director, they must not be involved in deciding their own remuneration and must be alive to the potential conflict of interest in being involved in setting the remuneration for other executives that may indirectly affect their own (eg. through setting a benchmark or because of relatives).

From time to time, non Remuneration Committee members may be invited to attend meetings of the Remuneration Committee, if it is considered appropriate.

2 Role

The function of the Remuneration Committee is to fulfil its corporate governance responsibilities with respect to remuneration by:

- (a) reviewing and approving the Company's remuneration framework for directors;
- (b) reviewing and approving remuneration packages for senior executives;
- (c) reviewing and approving incentive and equity-based remuneration plans for senior executives and other employees, including the appropriateness of performance hurdles and total payments proposed to be made to senior executives;
- (d) reviewing superannuation arrangements for directors, senior executives and other employees;
- (e) reviewing termination payments;
- (f) ensuring compliance with remuneration related reporting requirements including disclosing a summary of the Company's policies and practices regarding the deferral of performance-based remuneration and the reduction, cancellation or clawback of performance-based remuneration in the event of serious misconduct or a material misstatement in the Company's financial statements; and
- (g) considering whether there is any gender or other inappropriate bias in remuneration for directors, senior executives or other employees.

3 Operations

The Remuneration Committee shall meet at least once a year and otherwise as required. A report of actions taken by the Remuneration Committee also given by the Chair of the Remuneration Committee at each subsequent meeting of the full Board and once finalised, the minutes are available for Board review. Minutes of such meetings must be kept and the meetings are to be governed by the same rules as set out in the Company's Constitution, as they apply to meetings of the Board.

4 Responsibilities

Executive remuneration

In formulating the Company's Remuneration Policy and levels of remuneration for executives, the Remuneration Committee makes decisions to balance:

- (a) its desire to attract, retain and motivate executive directors and senior executives
- (b) the need to ensure that the incentives for executive directors and other senior executives encourage them to pursue the growth and success of the Company (both in the short term and over the longer term) without taking undue risks;
- (c) the need to demonstrate a clear correlation between executive directors and other senior executives' performance and remuneration and how it is aligned to the creation of value for shareholders; and
- (d) its commercial interest in not paying excessive remuneration.

The Remuneration Committee refers to the following guidelines for executive remuneration extracted from the Principles and Recommendations in formulating its executive remuneration policies and practices:

Guidelines for Executive Remuneration
Composition: remuneration packages for executive directors and other senior executives should include an appropriate balance of fixed remuneration and performance-based remuneration.
Fixed remuneration: should be reasonable and fair; taking into account the Company's obligations at law and labour market conditions, and should be relative to the scale of the Company's business. It should reflect core performance requirements and expectations.
Performance-based remuneration: should be linked to clearly specified performance targets. These targets should be aligned to the Company's short and long-term performance objectives and should be appropriate to its circumstances, goals and risk appetite.
Equity-based remuneration: well-designed equity based remuneration, including options or performance rights, can be an effective form of remuneration, especially when linked to hurdles that are aligned to the Company's longer-term performance objectives. Care needs to be taken in the design of equity-based remuneration schemes, however, to ensure that they do not lead to "short termism" on the part of senior executives or the taking of undue risks.
Termination payments: termination payment, if any, for senior executives, should be agreed in advance and the agreement should clearly address what will happen in the case of early termination.¹ There should be no payment for removal for misconduct.

To the extent that the Company adopts an approach to executive remuneration that is not in accordance with the guidelines outlined above, the Remuneration Committee shall document its reasons for the purpose of disclosure to stakeholders.

Non-executive remuneration

In considering the Company's Remuneration Policy and levels of remuneration for non-executive directors, the Remuneration Committee is to ensure that:

- (a) fees paid to non-executive directors are within the aggregate amount approved by shareholders and make recommendations to the Board with respect to the need for increases to this aggregate amount at the Company's annual general meeting;
- (b) non-executive directors are remunerated by way of fees (in the form of cash or equity and superannuation benefits);
- (c) non-executive directors are not provided with retirement benefits other than statutory superannuation entitlements; and
- (d) non-executive directors are not entitled to participate in equity-based remuneration schemes designed for executives without due consideration and appropriate disclosure to the Company's shareholders, and any incentives must not conflict with the non-executive director's obligation to bring an independent judgment to matters before the Board.

The Remuneration Committee refers to the following guidelines for non-executive director remuneration extracted from the Principles and Recommendations in formulating its non-executive director remuneration policies and practices:

Guidelines for Non-executive Director Remuneration

Composition: non-executive directors should be remunerated by way of cash fees, superannuation contributions and non-cash benefits in lieu of fees (such as salary sacrifice into superannuation or equity).

Fixed remuneration: levels of fixed remuneration for non-executive directors should reflect the time commitment and responsibilities of the role.

Performance-based remuneration: non-executive directors should not receive performance-based remuneration as it may lead to bias in their decision-making and compromise their objectivity.

Equity-based remuneration: it is generally acceptable for non-executive directors to receive securities as part of the remuneration to align their interests with the interests of other security holders. However, non-executive directors generally should not receive options with performance hurdles attached or performance rights as part of their remuneration as it may lead to bias in their decision-making and compromise their objectivity.

Termination payments: non-executive directors should not be provided with retirement benefits other than superannuation.

To the extent that the Company adopts an approach to non-executive director remuneration that is not in accordance with the guidelines outlined above, the Remuneration Committee shall document its reasons for the purpose of disclosure to stakeholders.

Incentive plans and benefits programs

The Remuneration Committee is to:

- (a) review and make recommendations concerning long-term incentive compensation plans, including equity-based plans. Except as otherwise delegated, the Remuneration Committee will administer equity-based and employee benefit plans, and as such will discharge any responsibilities under those plans, including making and authorising issues of equity, in accordance with the terms of those plans;
- (b) ensure that incentive plans are designed around appropriate and realistic performance targets that measure relative performance and provide rewards when they are achieved; and
- (c) continually review and if necessary improve any existing benefit programs established for employees.

Remuneration reporting and engagement with shareholders

The Remuneration Committee is to:

- (a) review and approve the remuneration report for inclusion in the Company's annual report and oversee the process supporting its preparation;

- (c) make sure that shareholder approval is sought for remuneration matters which require it;
- (d) consider if interaction with the Audit and Risk Committee (or equivalent) is required to fulfil reporting obligations;
- (e) consider if the Chair of the Remuneration Committee rather than the Chair of the Board will take questions from shareholders on the remuneration report at the Company's annual general meeting.
